HONGKONG, November 11th, 1899.

A BILL has been introduced into the Legislative Council of the Straits Settlements to amend the Military Contribution Ordinance. The Bill has been introduced in accordance with instructions from the Secretary of State, and presumably similar instructions have been received in Hongkong; if not the ratepayers will have good cause to ask the reason why. The principal Ordinance, in the Straits as in Hongkong, provides for the payment by the colony of a percentage on the gross receipts by the colony, from all sources of revenue, exclusive of the proceeds of land sales and premia on leases or statutory grants. The Straits amending Bill is not published in full in our Singapore contemporaries, but the Straits Times, in publishing a brief summary of it, says no special provision is made by the principal Ordinance for the calculation, for the purpose of the Ordinance, of the receipts from railways and other productive works undertaken by Government. It would be manifestly unfair that the gross receipts of such an undertaking as a railway should be reckoned for that purpose as revenue. This Bill, therefore, provides that the percentage for defence contribution shall be struck on the net revenue of such undertakings, after deducting working expenses and charges for interest and sinking fund on borrowed capital." This principle has been contended for in Hongkong, and if it is to be applied in the Straits there is equal reason why it should be applied in this colony. Hongkong has indeed been unfairly treated in this matter throughout. In the Straits the revenues of the various municipalities are exempted from the contribution, whereas in Hongkong, where municipal and general revenues are merged in one, the contribution is levied on the whole. We have on former occasions contended that the whole of our municipal revenue should be exempt, but if this point cannot be gained the colony is at least entitled to ask that where municipal works are executed with borrowed money the revenue required for the payment of interest and the repayment of capital shall be exempt from the military contribution. There is no more reason why the contribution should be levied on the gross revenues from markets or waterworks, for instance, than on the gross revenues from railways, more especially when the undertakings have been carried out by borrowed money. In Hongkong some difficulty might be experienced in differentiating between works paid for out of borrowed money and those paid for out of revenue, but as the whole amount of our public debt has been expended on public works, a convenient arrangement would be to exempt from payment of the military contribution so much of the gross revenue as may be required to meet the service of the loan.

A STEAM laundry Company has recently been floated at Shanghai and we learn from our Northern contemporaries that a second undertaking of the same description is on the tapis. The Mercury says:—"If cleanliness is next to godliness both undertakings ought to pay, but judging by the miserable fiasco which attended the Hongkong Company, we are afraid that the native competition will be hard to withstand." We recently had a conversation with a gentleman who was intimately connected with the floating of the Hongkong Company, and it may afford a useful hint to the Shanghai Companies if we place on record his explanation of the cause of its failure. The primary cause of failure, our informant stated, was not want of acquaintance with the details of the business, as was on a former occasion suggested in this column, but the difficulty and delay experienced in connection with the collection of the linen. When a Chinese dhobie goes to the house of one of his customers to collect the washing he thinks nothing of being kept waiting an hour for it, or even of being told to come again next day. Delays of this kind, however, are fatal to an undertaking with expensive machinery and an expensive staff, and that was the rock on which the Hongkong Steam Laundry Company came to grief. The difficulty ought not to prove insuperable, we think, but the fact remains that it was not surmounted in this particular case.

H. M. S. Bonaventure left yesterday for Shanghai.

An inquest was held on 16th October at Southborough on the body of Lady Edwards, wife of Lieut.-General Sir James Bevan Edwards, the Gables, Folkestone. The deceased lady was found on Southborough-common on 7th Oct., and it transpired at the inquest that she had taken four drachms of salts of lemon, which was the cause of death. The jury returned a verdict of suicide by poisoning while temporarily insane. She had been under medical care for some time, but had eluded the vigilance of those in charge of her.

In a home paper we read that a missionary, Mrs. W. Bridle, wife of a Wesleyan minister, addressed a large gathering of ladies at the Oxford-place Chapel, Leeds, on 11th October, in connection with the local anniversary of Wesleyan missions. Describing her work in the Canton district of China, she said that the great difficulty to contend with was woman's tongue. She had found that nearly every evil in China was traceable to, more or less, woman's tongue, which asserted itself even in the class meeting, and which could not be easily silenced.

The China Gazette of 3th November says:—We are sorry to learn that a good deal of bad blood exists between a section of German and British men-o-warsmen here anent the Boer trouble, and a serious fracas in the Yangkingpang was fortunately only averted in time last night. It might have arisen through the news of the British successes in the Transvaal, published in these columns on Saturday night, but it is difficult to associate Germany with Boer tactics. It is to be hoped that the naval authorities will prevent any untimely meeting between the disputants till the present touchy feeling cools down.

Lord Charles Beresford, addressing representatives of the Stock Exchange at New York on 11th October, referred to his trip to China as in the interests of the continued commercial amity between Great Britain and America. He said that the time for wars had passed, and even at this late day he was still hopeful of a peaceful settlement of the Transvaal crisis. So long as England and America worked together as friends and brothers, there could not be any general war in the world. The speech was frequently interrupted by applause, and at the close vociferous cheers were raised for Lord Charles Beresford and the "British Lion." Shouts of "Well done, Condor!" were also heard.

The London and China Express says:—The Norddeutscher Lloyd Konig Albert, which left Southampton on 9th inst., and by which Sir Claude and Lady MacDonald are travelling back to China, is the largest steamer that has ever sailed for China and Japan. She had a good number of Continental passengers, including several German naval officers. The English contingent numbered no fewer than 120 passengers. The arrangements and decorations of the new liner were greatly admired. The smoke-room in white satinwood and green leather, and the ladies' room also decorated in with old-gold silk upholstery, were particularly commented upon. The Konig Albert has just been examined by the German naval authorities, and is certified to carry twenty-six guns when on a war footing. She is of 10,000 tons, and did seventeen knots on her trial trip.

During the first race day of the Shanghai Races $12,360 were invested in the Pari-Mutuel and $9,645 in the Totalisator. In the former the largest individual stake was the Lottery stakes when $3,140 was laid on. In the latter the biggest run was on the Club Cup, when $1,945 changed hands. During the second day the Pari-Mutuel did business to the extent of $15,715 and the Totalisator $20,210. In the former, individually, the Leger carried the top figure of $2,890, while in the latter the Eyces race came first with $2,790. During the last day's racing attention seems to have been centred in the Totalisator, which received $21,915 as against $13,220 received by the Pari-Mutuel. The Champions came in for the largest share of these investments, $2,880 having been paid to the Pari-Mutuel and $4,175 to Totalisator. On the whole $41,295 was handed across the Pari-Mutuel counter and $51,770 across that of the Totalisator, that is to say, $93,065 changed hands during the races.—Mercury.

The delivery of the English mail was begun at 9.30 a.m. yesterday.

From Hankow we learn that the week before last two steamers left the Hanyang Iron Works, one with 2,000 tons pig iron for Japan and one with 2,000 tons steel rails. There are a good number of accidents, broken legs, etc., caused by inexperienced coolies handling heavy steel rails.—Mercury.

RETROCESSION OF SHAMCHUN TO CHINA.

We regret to learn that instructions have been received from home that the town of Shamchun is to be evacuated by the British troops now stationed there and to be given up to China. After the disturbances that occurred in connection with the taking over of the New Territory the home Government determined to mark their sense of the duplicity of the Chinese authorities in a suitable manner, and orders were accordingly issued to the military to seize Kowloon walled city and Shamchun. At the occupation of Shamchun the troops were commanded by Major-General Gasseigne in person. The occupation was effected on the 16th May, and on the following day the General issued a proclamation, saying that the district was now under the Queen's dominion, that justice would be done to everybody, that the inhabitants were no longer to pay any taxes to Chinese officials, and that if any Chinese officials came to them for taxes they were to report the matter to the officer commanding the troops. The town has remained in the military occupation of Great Britain ever since.

Some little time after the occupation it was reported, on what was understood to be good authority, that the home Government had offered to restore the town to the Chinese on payment of an indemnity of $90,000. The public opinion as to the inadvisability of such a step was freely expressed, and as time went on and the occupation continued it was hoped that the danger was past and that the probability was rather in favour of the extension of British territory up to the natural frontier marked by the hills behind. This hope, however, has been disappointed. China has expressed her willingness to pay the indemnity demanded and has asked for the retrocession of the town of Shamchun, to which the home Government has agreed.

The inhabitants, who had become accustomed to the British occupation, are said to view their transfer to Chinese jurisdiction again with disfavour, or at least without enthusiasm. A serious aspect of the case is that the transaction is causing a feeling of insecurity amongst the inhabitants in the territory already delimited as British. Intelligent men to whose ears the report of the retrocession of Shamchun has come ask what their own position is, and whether they are to regard themselves as British subjects for good and all or are liable at any time to be re-transferred to Chinese jurisdiction.

An addition to the report is that China has been supported by France and Russia in her demand for the retrocession of Shamchun and that Great Britain has in fact yielded to pressure. This portion of the report may be dismissed as a figment of the imagination.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

The news of the death of Commander Egerton, which as in the case of Major-General Symons, appears to have occurred before news of his promotion reached him, will be regretted by many residents of Hongkong, to whom the deceased was known as an able officer. His work at Ladysmith gave promise of a brilliant future career, but unfortunately he has met the fate of a number of other good men who have fallen fighting in Natal. While it is comforting to know that he could not desire a braver death, his presence will not soon fade from the memory of his friends in Hongkong and elsewhere in the Far East.

* * * * *

Now that the details are beginning to filter through from the Indian and Australian exchanges of the early operations in South Africa, it would appear that although the British have lost heavily, the Boers have had a very costly campaign, and whereas the fighting of the British so far has been to some purpose, the Boers, although having assumed the aggressive, remain practically where they started, without having accomplished anything beyond weakening their enemy by loss of men through death and capture. The British occupy the principal points encircling Boer territory, namely, Ladysmith, Kimberley, and Mafeking, and so far the united Boer forces have been unable to crush them or force them from those positions. Thus the advance of the Boers is checked and Joubert's previous blatant announcement as to his triumphal march into Cape Colony and the seizure of everybody and everything has not yet been realised. As far as an aggressive campaign on the part of the Boers is concerned the British hold the situation, for the Boers cannot advance and leave their borders exposed to the three garrisons mentioned.

* * * * *

Concerning actual hand-to-hand fighting the British have certainly had the best of it, and the actions at Glencoe and Elandslaagte will rank as some of the finest fighting records of modern times when the history of the campaign comes to be written up. In those actions, as in the minor affairs reported, when Tommy Atkins charged he came out "away topside." Consequently it is conceivable that the Boer opinion as to the fighting ability of the British soldier has changed somewhat from that which so frequently found expression before the war.

* * * * *

The telegraphic news by Reuter as to how Tommy was eating his heart out in captivity, will no doubt find a page in Mar O'Rell's note-book on the characteristics of the English people. Anyone who has watched a tough game of Rugby or Soccer will readily understand the consolation that such would afford prisoners of war, at the same time keeping the men in real athletic and consequently fighting trim. The daily telegrams may therefore any day bring along an announcement that the Irish Fusiliers have beaten the Hussars by two to one, and are in for the final against the Gloucesters for the Pretoria Cup. For that event Father Paul would shine as a referee, providing he handled the whistle promptly and did not want to commune with his own special Almighty for an hour or so, when a foul was claimed. Football enthusiasts would be glad to know which team had the honour of introducing the game into Pretoria, and think that now it is once started there are prospects of the Boer community after all becoming civilised!

* * * * *

A few weeks ago I noticed that a correspondent drew attention to the large number of beggars who infested the principal roads and pestered Europeans for alms. Your correspondent omitted to mention that the majority were small children, who were thus being trained as professional beggars. In spite of this complaint, and presumably many others that reach the police, nothing has been done to check this increasing nuisance. A few days ago a friend from the north, a consul by the way, was entering a shop in Queen's Road, with a lady, when he was deliberately followed into the shop by two or three young rascals, who demanded "cumshaws." The Chinese storekeeper had to drive them out, and they waited on the threshold for the benevolent-looking stranger, who only got rid of them by taking a chair. Another lady of my acquaintance, on the same road, ignoring the appeals of a beggar, was surprised to find her arm roughly seized, and had to intimidate the beggar with her umbrella to escape him. On Sunday morning last I counted thirteen beggars between the Cathedral and Glenealy, all sorts and all sizes, demanding alms from every European. A Sikh policeman was carefully patrolling the same section, which had no effect on the presence of these vagrants. To find a parallel, one will soon have to journey to a Chinese city, and as neither Singapore nor Shanghai are infested with this class of people, it is difficult to understand the indulgence of the authorities here. One of the unofficial members at the next Council meeting might give notice of a question to the Chief of Police as to why wholesale begging by natives from Europeans is permitted in the colony, in reply to which at the subsequent meeting the chief might produce reasons which would enlighten and pacify not a few residents.

* * * * *

With reference to General Black's recent speech in which he expressed his opinion that if one or two Chinese battalions had been raised in the sixties they would have formed the nucleus of a Chinese army, I am inclined to your opinion, Mr. Editor, that the question of regenerating the state by means of an efficient army is a theory that possesses at least two aspects. It is one thing to vote the desired army by means of foreign money, honesty, and brains, but it is another matter in China to keep up that army when it is handed to the provincial authorities for control. If Great Britain had philanthropically trained a brigade of Chinese the reform of China would not have been advanced one iota until enforceable guarantees were given that the Brigade would be regularly paid and kept efficient. This would necessitate a thorough reform of the financial system, or rather want of system, in China, and when that is secured there would be no difficulty in getting soldiers and even trained native officers.

* * * * *

The fact is perhaps sometimes lost sight of that in China the profession of a soldier is one that respectable families look askance at. The man who becomes an officer is generally run pretty close in other opportunities for making a living, and as his position gives him no standing in public opinion, but is regarded rather as a last resource for a man of brains, and no fitting employment for a man of means, it can be readily understood that the officer class is not exactly that required to reform any country. With due deference to the gallant General's opinions, the experiment of organising regiments of Chinese on modern lines has been repeatedly tried, especially in recent years, and found wanting. Under the jurisdiction of the Viceroys at Nanking and Tientsin battalions of men have been raised, splendid fellows as regards physique, tractability, and understanding, who have been trained by competent European officers, and at the various reviews and in sundry rebellions, have given evidence of their fitness as soldiers. The reason of this being simply that the Chinaman, like most other people, when paid fairly well for his services, and paid regularly, is willing to drill regularly and becomes an efficient fighting unit. But what is the eventual result? Why, the Viceroy finds that the squeezes or contributions demanded from Peking to compensate blunders made elsewhere, suddenly grow larger. He is forced to retrench and squeezes in turn his subordinates; the foreign instructors are gradually dismissed, the native officers find their pay decreased, and to make up for it they squeeze those remaining soldiers who are not disbanded when the foreign instructors are dismissed. Finally, the man, objecting to this, deserts or are still further disbanded, and drift off, swelling the coolie classes, or if their military instincts are not allayed, swell the ranks of the insurgents in the periodical rebellions, or turn pirates. So, the money is squandered, and the armies go the way of other reforms in China.

* * * * *

The seat of the evil, and the great difficulty confronting the upkeep of an efficient army, is the system of provincial viceregal covernment, the absence of a just and equitable system of taxation, or, in brief, the utter absence of any financial system. If the soldiers were regularly paid, as soldiers of the Empire and not of Viceroys, if the status of the native officer was raised to attract and keep desirable young men, willing to go through a thorough modern training, there would be some use in talking of handing over foreign trained battalions to native control. But as things financial at present exist, and are likely to do so, until the financial administration of the Empire is placed under foreign control on the same basis as the I.M. Customs, it is impossible, and if your Weihaiwei Regiment was handed over to the Viceroy of Pechili, it would become a banner corps in a month, and after that would be heard of no more, though its pay-sheet might for many years appear on the expenditure side of the annual statements of the Viceroy to Peking.

HONGKONG LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

A meeting of the Legislative Council will be held on Monday at 3 p.m. The following are the orders of the day:—

Financial minutes Nos. 20 to 23.

Questions by Hon. T. H. Whitehead:—

(1.) With reference to the report, dated 9th May last, of the Principal Civil Medical Officer which gives the number of first class private paying patients as 65 for 1896, 53 for 1897, and 58 for 1898, will the Honourable the Colonial Secretary lay on the table a statement shewing the average number of days the said patients occupied the Hospital in each of those years, the aggregate amount of money received in each of those years from first class private paying patients, and the estimated actual cost to Government of each of the said first class patients?

(2.) Will the Honourable the Director of Public Works lay on the table a statement showing the area and the estimated value of the land at "Mountain Lodge" on which it is proposed to erect a summer residence for His Excellency the Governor?

Committee on the Bill entitled an Ordinance to make further provision for the sanitation of the colony and to repeal certain enactments of the closed houses and insanitary dwellings Ordinances, 1894.

Committee on the Bill entitled an Ordinance to apply a sum not exceeding two million six hundred and eight-one thousand six hundred and fifty-one dollars to the public service of the year 1900.

WHITE AND SOUND TEETH. ROWLAND'S ODONTO is the best and purest dentifrice, being warranted free from any acid or gritty ingredients; it whitens and preserves the teeth, eradicates the formation of tartar, removes spots of incipient decay, polishes and preserves the enamel, sweetens the breath, induces a healthy action of the gums causing them to assume the brightness and colour indicative of perfect soundness. DISCRIMINATION AGAINST BRITISH SUBJECTS AT WEIHAIWEI.

The following history, says the Globe, is instructive, if exceedingly irritating.—Some time ago Mr. Frenderic Rhodes completed a purchase of land within the British territory of Weihaiwei for the purpose of conducting mining operations. As permission to undertake such operation was refused him by the Vice-Admiral, Mr. Rhodes appealed to the Foreign office, and forwarded at the same time an application for mining rights to the Admiralty. To this he received a reply that, "as it has been decided to grant no mining rights of any kind in the territory for the present," the Admiralty could not grant his request. Yet since their lordships arrived at this decision the Commissioner of Weihaiwei has given permission to a German named Jurgens to mine for a coal deposit. Now, as far as military or naval considerations as concerned, there cannot possibly be any objection to the one process which does not apply to the other, and it is nothing short of scandalous that a German should be able to obtain privileges on British territory which are refused to a British subject. The permanent officials of no other nation in the world would be guilty of such a disregard of the interest of their own people.

THE PLAGUE AT NEWCHWANG.

Newchwang, 27th October.

The engrossing topic of the port is the plague epidemic. It is assuming such serious proportions that the principal shipping companies are refusing all native passenger traffic, even when guaranteed medical supervision of the Celestials when placed on board. This means a plethora of Chinese foreign to the port, and these are inclined to be rowdy. The Tientsin men are the worst offenders, and anxiety would be felt if the Russians did not appear to be ready for any emergency. Especial precautions hover around the Russo-Chinese Bank premises, and these can be extended to any other parts of Settlement should occasion arise; in fact the Russian completeness ought to be an object lesson to all other Settlements in these troublous times. Beside the deaths from plague amongst the "boys" employed by Europeans, a fatal case has occurred on the Newchwang Lightship. A winter surrounded by these black outlooks does not tend to make the "white man" more comfortable, especially as cold seems an assistance in propagating the horrid disease. Can we gain a grain of encouragement from a prevalent statement that a French Missionary—a very old stager in Northern China—has discovered a cure, should it be adopted by the patient ere the plague is too far advanced in its attack? It is gathered that heavy doses of ipecacuanha is the remedy employed, but we await an authoritative medical pronouncement with much interest. —Shanghai Daily Press correspondent.

THE NEW RUSSIAN PORT AT TALIENWAN.

It is definitely announced from St. Petersburg that a free Port will be established at Dalny as soon as the building of that town shall have been completed and the harbour capable of affording shelter to shipping. The town of Dalny, together with its immediate neighbourhood, will form a special district placed under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Finance. The Eastern Chinese Railway Company will undertake the building of the town. The merchants and the foreign commercial houses who may settle there may enjoy the same rights and privileges as the Russian merchants and commercial firms. The foreign inhabitants will be electors, and eligible as members of the Municipal Council, on the same footing as Russian subjects. Foreigners, as well as Russians, will be able to acquire freehold or leasehold land on which to build houses or commercial entrepôts. These lands will be disposed of at public auction to the highest bidders by the Eastern Chinese Railway Company.

THE NEWCHWANG AND PORT ARTHUR RAILWAY.

Newchwang, 27th October.

The opening of the Railway to Port Arthur took place on the 23rd inst., but it can only be described as an official function. The Russo-Chinese Bank flagstaff was decorated with flags to commemorate the event, and the effect was pretty and attractive. Needless to add, the Railway is secure theoretically than practically complete. The Russians are fond of divergences and a change of route characterises all their railway work. You may be sure there is nothing wanton in these convergences. The proximity of a newly discovered mine or any other valuable find play havoc with the civil engineer's chart. Any native objection is treated scoffingly and the nasty muzzle of a gun is convincing both to the Chinese officials and the commonality. The former, however, are the least troublesome: their plans are well greased if they possess any power at all. —Shanghai Daily Press correspondent.

A COMMERCIAL ATTACHE FOR CHINA.

The Queen has been pleased to approve of the appointment of Mr. James William Jamieson, of Her Majesty's Consular Service in China, to be Commercial Attaché in that country. This announcement will be welcomed as an indication that the Government have been brought to realise the importance, if not the necessity, of appointing properly-established commercial attaches in China. So far as this particular appointment is concerned, no exception can be taken to it. Mr. Jamieson has been in the Consular service in China some thirteen years, and during that period has had a varied experience which will fully qualify him for his new position. He has filled the office of Acting Vice-Consul at Shanghai, Pagoda Island, and Canton, while he was Acting-Consul at Wuchow from June to November in 1897, and has been Acting-Consul at Szumao since February, 1898.—London and China Express.

AN ENGLISH HEAD FOR THE SIAMESE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

Some time back the King of Siam requested the British Foreign Office to recommend an Englishman who would be prepared to undertake the task of organising a system of primary and secondary education in Siam. The appointment was accordingly offered to Mr. J. G. D. Campbell, one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools, who has been temporarily relieved by the Education Office from his duties in England with this object. Mr. Campbell left England on 9th October en route for Siam. His appointment is for two years.

THE EARTHQUAKE AND TIDAL WAVE ON THE SOUTH COST OF CERAM.

The following is the Java Bode's account of the recent earthquake and tidal wave on the South Coast of the Island of Ceram:

In the clear still night of 29th and 30th September last at about 1.40 a.m. we were awoke from our sleep by a heavy horizontal earthquake in the direction N. E. and S. W. which lasted about one minute. A half an hour later the water streamed forcibly into the Bay of Amboina, without however submerging the land. The tidal wave only stopped at 7 a.m. There was little damage at Amboina. The Postholder at Arabel was slightly wounded, but other officials escaped. The provinces Paulohy, Samasoerce, and Makariri are entirely laid waste. The two former had a population of about 1,700 souls, of whom only about 40 remain alive. The beach was strewn with corpses. In Elpapoetih Bay the tidal wave must have been some metres high, as it went over some fairly high trees, sweeping all before it, so that the coast now is a mud pool. A lot of people from Saparoea who were there for the sago harvest lost their lives. Those who escaped have dreadful stories to tell. One man said bodies had been found without heads and the suspicion exists that they were beheaded after death by the Head-hunting Hill Alfoers; another said a body had been found on the top of a Sago-palm and a third had stories to tell of bodies swallowed by sharks.

Great lumps of stone came out of the sea with the tidal wave.

At Hatoesoea over 100 are killed and 40 wounded. The bulk of the people have fled to safer regions.

There is a panic amongst the people on account of the hill tribes.

The Post-holder Meerzes was inland at the time of the earthquake, and owe his life to that fact. He reports scenting sulphur fumes both at sea and on land on and about 30th September. Other details go to show that the combined sea and earthquake was very widespread, but that the greatest damage was in and about Elpapotih Bay.

BATTLE OF ELANDSLAAGTE.

GRAPHIC DISCRIPTION.

A TERRIBLE STRUGGLE.

BRAVERY OF THE GORDONS.

London, 25th October.

The Times special correspondent at Elandslaagte, describing the battle, says that, after our first Battery came into action at 4 p.m. a body of mounted Boers broke into retreat. This was a ruse by which it was hoped to draw off a part of the attacking force, they themselves galloping back into position on the reverse side of the hill. The enemy's guns then ceased firing, while our Artillery, now having two Batteries in action, prepared the way for the Infantry assault, sending bursting shrapnel along the Boer position.

Thunderclouds behind the hills made an ominous background for the lurid light of the bursting shells.

It was evident that the attack must be pressed home before the night; so, after half an hour's preparation, the Infantry received orders to advance.

The Devonshire Regiment were given the task of delivering the front attack, with the Manchesters, supported by the Gordon Highlanders, on the right flank, for which they had make a wide detour.

This was at 4-30 p.m., and the rain fell in deluges a quarter of an hour later.

As the Infantry attack developed, the enemy brought forward three guns into position, and commenced shelling the advancing lines.

The Devons, who were stolidly pushing across the open, cutting the impeding wire entanglements put up by the STUDY OF BERI-BERI IN THE STRAITS.

According to a communication issued by the Colonial Office, the Government of the Straits Settlements invite the attention of Radcliffe travelling Fellows, and of holders of scholarships for medical and physical research, to the study of the tropical disease called Beri-Beri. The disease caused in the hospitals of the colony 730 deaths in 1896 and 692 in 1897. The Straits Settlements Government will be glad to assist any scholar who desires to engage in the scientific investigation of this disease in the colony by providing him with furnished quarters, rent free, by giving him free access to all the hospitals and facilities for studying the cases therein, by defraying the cost of passage to the colony, and in any way which may be agreed on hereafter between the scholar and the Colonial Secretary at Singapore.
